A Family Dinner Party.

A very enjoyable event at the pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Cummings recently was occasioned by the giving of a family dinner party to Mrs. Cummings' cousin, Mrs. George F. Nason, of Lowell, who has been visiting relatives in Norway the past week. After strolling about the grounds admiring the plants and flowers the party was invited into the house to partake of an elegant banquet served in Mr. and Mrs. Cummings' most cordial and happy manner and it would be needless to say it was much enjoyed by each and every one present.

The flowers which decorated the rooms and table were especially beautiful and added much to the pleasure of all present.
The evening was passed in social chat and in listening to fine music by Nor-

the passing moments and all too soon came the parting hour with wishes for many more happy meetings in the future.
These little bright spots along life's highway do much to cheer us on and the memories of this one will linger with us as long as life lasts.

CAMPFIRE.

Harry Rust Post and Corps held Annual Campfire at Grange Hall.

If the wish of nearly 200 patriotic people could have been granted, Tuesday would have been a day of glorious sunshine and a dismal gloomy day,
which was the day given to Harry Rust Post and Corps to hold their annual campfire, but in spite of the rain 175
patriotic people assembled.

Representatives from A. A. Roberts
Post and Corps of Oxford, A. A. Divinal
Post and Corps of Mechanic Falls, Wm.

from the reception room to the dining hall, where ten tables were well filled in two ways, "with people and food."

Edith table was in charge of a special waitress given in white. At each end of the several tables was a bouquet of nature's greatest creation, flowers, and in the center of the several bouquets was placed a National emblem, the Stars and Stripes. All about the sidewalks as well as at the head and foot of the dining hall, could be seen the most beautiful of all decorations, the red white and blue.

After the guests had assembled, grace was given in very appropriate words by the Rev. R. J. Bruce, after which all participated in the banquet which was served by members of the executive com-

Interesting Menagerie.

The Norway & South Paris Power Plant has an interesting menagerie of 8 gray squirrels and a cage of mice. The squirrels were captured by Carl Fogs, who has the night shift at the power house.
They are kept in a large outdoor cage
about 12 feet long, 8 feet high and wide,
with a small nest house at large wheel.
The squirrels are fine large fellows, with great bushy tails, very tame and with many amusing tricks. They would run all over Albert Hobbs, who was feeding them, get the peanuts, and then run and hang down by their hind feet on the vine netting.

The two mice are kept in a cage inside the power house. The cage has a round inclined table that the mice keep spinning rapidly by running on. They are interesting fellows to watch as they are very active, but not as attractive as the squirrels.

WHEN YOU ARE NERVOUS
you have the first symptom of a run-down system, and nervous people too often conceal their aches and pains and suffer in silence, while, if neglected, this condition often becomes more serious trouble.
If those so afflicted would stop taking medicine containing alcohol or drugs which menace the foundations of health, and just take the pure, strengthening nourishment in Scott's Emulsion, it would create new blood to pulsate through the organs, refresh their bodies and build up the whole nervous system. It is rich, sustaining nourishment, free from wines, alcohols or drugs. Shun substitutes.

Farms and Farmers

George H. Dunn of Norway says in the Department of Agriculture Bulletin: "I do not feed the hard as a herd. Cows differ in their tastes and requirements in the way of food, just as human beings do, although perhaps not to the same extent.

"To feed all cows in a herd alike, day after day and month after month, as is often done, is an absurd and wasteful practice. Some are sure not to get enough for the the greatest profit and others are likely to get more than they need to quantity only, but differences in kinds of feed may be equally desirable.

"I feed 14 to 20 pounds of ensilage and from 12 to 16 pounds of clover or mixed hay per day, according to the individual cow; and a grain ration consisting of 200 lbs. cottonseed meal, 200 lbs. bran or mixed feed, 100 lbs. ground oats, 100 lbs. corn meal, 125 lbs. Ajax flakes. To the mature cows I feed one pound of this mixture to four pounds of milk; the heifers are given one pound to three pounds of milk. The reason for feeding the heifers more than the mature cows is to keep up a good flow of milk and keep them growing at the same time. This I find to be a very satisfactory ration for the production of milk.

Raising of Young Stock.

"The calf is taken from the cow as soon as the milk is good and is taught to drink; it is given four to six pounds of whole milk, according to the individual calf, and as it grows older the milk is increased until the calf gets seven pounds and as the calf needs more drink, water is added. The milk is weighed every feed until the calf is at least three months old. The calf is given milk until it is six months old, at least. When skimming milk is fed it is given longer.

"All pens are kept clean and sweet and the pens are kept clean and dry. A box is put in the pen after the calf is two weeks' old and some dry grain is put in it. It is surprising to see how quickly they will learn to eat grain.

"Spring calves are kept in the barn the first summer. Fall calves are let out the next summer in the daytime and taken in at night; they can then be fed some grain and in this way are kept growing. I want a calf to grow every day, from the time it is born till it gets to maturity. To raise good calves, you cannot have any guesswork about it; you must know just what you are doing."

NOBODY LOVES HIM.

Everybody knows the man that nobody loves and everybody has had a visit from him since the first of the month. He is the most unjustly unpopular man that lives and moves and has his being among the human race. He is the man who makes his fellows do only what they have bound themselves deliberately to do, and yet such scowls and black looks greet him on his rounds that a foreigner would think him a traitor to his country and a enemy to society.

His business is to see to it that men live up to the obligations which they voluntarily entered into, but men seeing him coming afar off flee as from the pestilence. He is the greatest receiver of evil in the laws beside the evasion of the bill collector.

Men who make debts they cannot or will not pay blame it on the collector. With many men the polite presentation of a statement of account by a suave and mannerly young business man is just like waving a scarlet blanket in the face of a bull with the toothache. There are men who almost throw fits when bills are courteously proffered, and yet if the collector will patiently listen and then say with fine haughty manner, "Oh, is that the way you feel about it, you need not pay it at all; we'd rather lose the money than have you suffer that way," the debtor will promptly come around and apologize for having made a fool of himself.

The bill collector is indispensable. We could not do without him if we would. Some are so polite and companionable that we deliberately dribble them along loath to part with such delightful company, making small payments that they are compelled to call again. The bill collector is a real benefactor, because he makes us live up to obligations.

He teaches promptness and punctuality. Only he and death are our certain visitors. He is usually a model of that patience and perseverance which ultimately achieve their purpose. The bill collector, long denied, oft rebuffed, finally succeeds in persuading us to give him what is his, so that he may "render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's."

AUNT JENNIE'S BAKING DAY

Or a Loaf of Brownbread.

Eleanor Dunham, son of Sylvanus and Rebecca (Oakes) Dunham of Carver, Mass., was born in 1761, married Jane Bryant of Plympton, Mass., about 1798 or 1799, and settled in Paris, near Snow's Falls. Jane Bryant was the youngest daughter of Joseph and Zephia (Sampson) Bryant of Plympton, Mass.

They had a large family, Jane, Zephia, Eleazer, Hannah, Elanson, Lucy, Lucinda, Sampson, Isaac, Marinda and Asa Thomas. She often told me she had fourteen children, but two of them I never saw.

Zephia married Nathan Marshall, and she looked the most like her mother, "Aunt Jennie," as she was called by her most familiar friends. She had bright, lovely, brown eyes, and a most beautiful expression always on her face, and was very entertaining in her conversation.

Now comes my true story for I went to live with this dear family when I was about fifteen years of age. They lived in South Paris then, and Aunt Jennie must have been about eighty years old and very feeble. Their daughter, Lucinda, always lived at home for she was an invalid, and a great care to them in their old age. By hiring some one to help them they got along. As I would help her dress in the morning, she would walk out with but little help, sit down to the table, eat her breakfast with us, then go back to her bed. She never sat in a chair while I worked there. Near her bed, at the foot was what they called a "turned-up bed" for me, so I could be near and have the care of her nights as well as days.

There was a little fireplace in the room, and she often wanted me to light her pipe. Well, as this was a part of what I was expected to do, I tried my best to please her in this. I found much self denial for it was very disgusting to me always, and I never saw her smoke a pipe. Then most girls would not do for "love or money." Now I will tell you about our baking day.

Aunt Jennie always came out to help me that day, dear old lady, she was feeble and it was hard for her. We did not have any stove, and once a week Uncle Dunham would build a fire in the brick oven, with some special oven wood, which he always kept ready; after she thought it had burned along enough, she would tell me how to clear out the oven, and sweep it clean with a brush. Then I would bring the wooden broom-trough and she would mix the rye and Indian meal with molasses and water; then she would ask me to bring along the "bread-pan," a long handled wooden shovel you would call it, over this she would spread her hands, the place of the loaf of brownbread on it, and after dipping her hands in water she would smooth it all up. Then she would ask me to carry it along to the oven on the bread-pan, and she would take hold of the long handle, push it along to the back part of the oven and give it a quick jerk which always placed the loaf just where she intended it should be, on the bottom of the oven, for she had done that many times before.

Then she would have me put some milk in the jobe kettle, and hang it on the crane over the fire in the "fire place," put in some milk, and make an Indian pudding, and this we put in the brick oven to bake. Then she had to leave me to do the rest, though with much tribulation. I made apple pies, and sometimes a loaf of white bread, and filled the "mouth" of the oven (as they called the front part); always there was a pot of pork and beans, and sometimes an earthen pot of apple sauce. "The beans would last most of the week, and the big loaf of bread would last a week. Then I would bring the wooden broom-trough and she would mix the rye and Indian meal with molasses and water; then she would ask me to bring along the "bread-pan," a long handled wooden shovel you would call it, over this she would spread her hands, the place of the loaf of brownbread on it, and after dipping her hands in water she would smooth it all up. ## THE WHOLE BODY NEEDS PURE BLOOD

It Means Healthy Nutrition—Hood's Sarsaparilla Makes It.

The bones, the muscles, and all the organs of the body depend for their strength and tone and healthy action on pure blood.

If the blood is very impure, the bones become diseased; the muscles become enfeebled, the step loses its elasticity, and there is its glacial pace, perform the usual amount of labor. The skin loses its clearness, and pimples, blotches and other eruptions appear.

Hood's Sarsaparilla makes pure blood. It is positively unequalled in the treatment of scrofula and other humors, catarrh, rheumatism, dyspepsia, loss of appetite, that tired feeling and general debility. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a pure, safe and effective remedy. There is no other medicine like it. Be sure to get Hood's and get it today.

EAST OTISFIELD NEWS.
Scrubner Hill was all excitement when the news was phoned around. That they planned to have a social at the library, a welcome sound!

It was supper time on Saturday. All were tired with a week's work done, and there was no work to finish. Ere another week begun.

Never mind the fire and labor! Through the work that night we darted. Then we made a hasty toilet.

Harnessed the horse, and off we started. On an on we urged our good steed. For the time seemed flying by.

All at once we stopped, we listened. From the front we heard a cry.

A horse was down and rolling over; Woman's strength was never made To unbindle that tight harness, — So we lent a welcome aid.

Once again we started eastward. At the corner we stopped, for lo! There we met a crowd of people.

All dressed up, no place to go. The library was in utter darkness. Richly laden was the door.

So the disappointed young folks Mostly turned toward the street. Did we go home? Well, I guess not.

We started straight for the town hall. There bright lights and lively music Felt us for our trouble all.

In this world are many evils. Many sins and many harms; But the greatest disappointment Comes from spreading false alarms.

Ere another week begun. Never mind the fire and labor! Through the work that night we darted; Then we made a hasty toilet.

Harnessed the horse, and off we started. On and on we urged our good steed, For the time seemed flying by. All at once we stopped, we listened.

Just in front we heard a cry. A horse was down and rolling over; Woman's strength was never made To unbind that tight harness.

So we lent a welcome aid. Once again we started eastward. At the corner we stopped, for lo! There we met a crowd of people.

All dressed up in place to go. The Library was in utter darkness. Truly listened was the door!

So the disappointed young folks. Mostly turned toward the street called Fore. Did we go home? Well, we guess not.

We started straight for the town hall; There bright lights and lively music. Paid us for our trouble all.

In this world are many evils. Many sins and many harms; But the greatest disappointment Comes from spreading false alarms.

OLD FOLKS FIND NEW REMEDY RELIEVES ALL KIDNEY AND BLADDER MISERIES

Drives Rheumatic Pains Away, Relieves Backache and Bladder Disorders After A Few Doses Are Taken

Sleep disturbing bladder weaknesses, backache, rheumatism, and the many other kindred ailments which so commonly come with declining years, need no longer be a source of dread and misery to those who are past the middle age of life.

The new discovery, Croxone, overcomes all such disorders because it removes the very cause of the trouble. It soaks right into the kidneys, through the walls and linings; cleans out the little filtering glands and cells, and gives the kidneys new strength to do their work properly. It neutralizes and dissolves the poisonous uric acid substances that lodge in the joints and muscles, causing rheumatism; and makes the kidneys filter and sift out all the poisonous waste matter from the blood and drive it out of the system.

It matters not how old you are or how long you have suffered, Croxone is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results. You will find it different from all other remedies. There is nothing else on earth like it. It starts to work immediately, and more than a few doses are seldom required to relieve even the most chronic, obstinate cases.

It is the most wonderful remedy ever made for restoring the lifeless organs to health and strength and ridding the system of every particle of uric acid, and you can take it with the utmost confidence that nothing on earth will so quickly cure such conditions.

You can obtain an original package of Croxone at trifling cost from any first-class druggist. All druggists are authorized to personally return the purchase price if Croxone should fail in a single case.
